MARINE LIFE - SERIES II
PART 1 AND 2

Issued March 20, 1985 (33c) June 12, 1985 (others)
No. wmk. Perf. 14 x 14¼ (33c), 13¼ x 13¾ (others)
Designer: Gavin Ryan

There are many rare and unusual examples of marine life found in Australian waters. A selection of these creatures is featured on these Australian definitive stamps.

*5c Tasseled Anglerfish (Rhycherus filamentosus). Lurking motionless beside a sponge or rock, the tasseled anglerfish uses an inbuilt "fishing rod" and bait to tempt its victims into its waiting mouth.*

*20c Red Handfish (Brachionichthys politus). Its hand-like fins are thought to be used for holding on to things and for "walking" along the sea floor.*

33c Leafy Sea-Dragon. One of the most unusual of all Australian marine creatures is the Leafy Sea-Dragon. Slow moving and graceful, the Leafy Sea-Dragon seems to drift through the water masquerading as a piece of seaweed.

*40c Red Velvet Fish (Gnathanacanthus goetzeei). The innocent looking red velvet fish has a row of thirteen venomous spines in its dorsal fin.*

*80c Pineapple Fish (Cleidopus gloriamaris). To locate its food in the darkness the Pineapple fish has a light-emitting patch of skin, produced by bacteria living symbiotically on the skin patch, on either side of its lower jaw.*

*90c Crab-eyed Goby (Signigobius biocellatus). Markings looking remarkably like a pair of crab's eyes are displayed suddenly on the fins above the body to confuse predators - giving the little goby a chance to make its escape.*
