The image displays a collection of Indian postage stamps, primarily from the early 20th century, arranged in rows on a dark album page. The stamps are from various princely states, including Sirmour, Saurashtra, Travancore, and Cochin. Some stamps feature portraits of rulers, while others show landscapes or religious figures. The denominations range from one pie to half an anna. A handwritten label 'Sirmour' is placed above the first row, and 'Saurashtra' is placed above the second row. The stamps are mostly cancelled with black ink marks.
