As the printing plates of the 1992 (Type I)-issue left a more and more weaker image Royal Mail ordered a set of new re-engraved plates to guarantee a printing image of high quality standard for the High Value Definitives. The re-engraved issues are noticeably darker and have more clearly defined lines of etching which give a sharper outline to the castles. Some of the smaller windows are more prominent but the trunks and branches of the trees are less obvious on the new printings.
The Queen's silhouette changed from the former cross-hatched to a more cellular printing structure.

In 1997 Royal Mail signed new printing contracts. The contract for the high value definitives "Castles" received the Dutch printing company Enschedé.
They started to re-engrave the printing plates. The stamps show a lot of differences to the former Harrison printings. Most of them are better visible under a strong magnifying glass. The best way to distinguish Type I/II from Type III is to look at the inscriptions. The letter "C" of the Type III has no top serif and the tail of the letter points upwards. Generally the details of the buildings are to be seen better in the new engravings.

Diana, „Queen Of Hearts", Princess of Wales (1961 - 1997)
This issue commemorates Diana Spencer Princess of Wales, her life and her tragic death in a car accident during her stay in Paris. Diana added a new dimension to the life of a Princess. She combined her business and social engagements with the warmth of her heart in an exemplary way. People who had contact with this outstanding personality will never forget her lovely smile and her modesty. She spent a lot of her valuable time promoting numerous charities, trying to improve the lives of the poor and sick, or those who are living in war areas all over the world. She always gave priority to the upbringing of her two sons, Prince William and Prince Harry, to give them all her love and understanding, as an example for their own lives. If Princess Diana had a coat of arms of her own it might cover a golden heart with a crown overlapped by her own large red heart. Goodbye England's Rose and farewell Diana, Queen Of Hearts.

Carnival — Europa 1998
The set of four stamps commemorates London's Notting Hill Carnival which takes place each year on the last weekend of August. The four stamps depict photographs by Tim Hazael which capture the gregarious movement and splendour of the fabulous costumes that tour the three miles of Notting Hill accompanied by live bands and sound systems.
The values of 20p and 26p include the EUROPA emblem.

MILLENNIUM TIMEKEEPER
The stamps are depicting a concept of time and space interacting with a dial and the Greenwich meridian drawing close together until they coincide at the moment of the Millennium. So these stamps make come face-to-face two inter-linked aspects of time: the astronomical reality defined by earth's rotation speed and an artificial system developed by mankind to make visible like time goes by.
